East Montrose in 1907

Original located at the Dolph Briscoe Center for American History, University of Texas at Austin

Thanks to East Montrose resident (and overall bon vivant) Bill Maxey for sending this very interesting map!

A lot has changed since 1907! Streets have changed names, the boundaries of East Montrose have been expanded, and a lot more structures have been built.

This leads to a question —do you need something to do?

If yes, then here is a suggestion that should be very interesting to East Montrose residents, provide some exercise for you, and maybe even be fun!

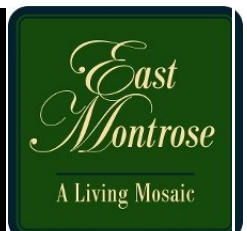

The project? Take a survey of how many original bungalows still exist in East Montrose.

The project would involve marking a map of East Montrose to show where the original bungalows are located, and calculating the percentage of newer vs. original. The percentage would have to be a best guess since some townhome projects cover multiple original lots that were merged together.

There is no deadline (the sooner the better, of course) and results will be printed in this newsletter.

Email the newsletter editor, Lee Hudman, if you are interested in taking on this project at newsletter.emca@gmail.com

Several "East Montrose – A Living Mosaic" signs are still available, if you want one to display on your property. These sturdy signs are $75 each. Please contact our treasurer Julia Schafer at 281-221-3250 to make your purchase. Julia also asks to remind you that EMCA dues are now up for renewal.

Out and About...

by Julie Young

Changing faces in the 'hood...

Goodbye to Mark Lankford, 2200 Stanford, resident since the '90's and former EMCA treasure and newsletter editor, who moved to Galveston – but somehow keeps popping up at the Stanford house and, most notably, at his favorite haunt at El Tiempo Mexican Restaurant.

So long to Richard & Perry, 500 Fargo, residents since the '90's and former EMCA co-presidents, who have moved closer to Shepherd, while awaiting a permanent retirement move to Puerto Vallarta. (Marshall & Mickey, 300 Fargo, are already enjoying the sunny beach.) Welcome to the new neighbors who have moved in to their gorgeous 4-square Victorian.

A warm welcome to Alissa and Andrew in 600 Welch. And sad farewell to their home's former residents of over two decades, Juan & Doyle, both to small towns in East Texas. Juan, a.k.a. the Montrose Skater (if you're not familiar, Youtube him – it's worth the look, seriously!), promises to still be a fixture performing on the corner of Montrose & Allen Parkway, as well as various engagements throughout Houston.

Also gone by the time you read this is El Paraiso Mexican Restaurant, retiring after 40+ years on Fairview at Crocker. Man, will I miss those tortas and bean soup – but NOTHING beats that salsa – can you say GARLIC?!

Driving down 900 Willard not long ago, I gasped and slammed on the brakes. I could not believe what I saw.... A construction site where the workmen had actually kept ALL trash and debris OFF the sidewalk! No unsightly mess, no mud, no danger to pedestrians. Kudos, gentlemen – this is an East Montrose first!

Longtime readers will be glad to know that I am not going to do a rant about Crepe Murder this spring. Those of you who are guilty know who you are, and we know you're going to go ahead and commit the crime anyway.

I DO have a rant about sun, though. I am really getting tired of the low winter sun angling into my eyes and windshield. When, oh WHEN is the equinox?! Bring on those longer days and higher sun!

"Petty crime" continues to plague the 'hood. Porch pirates / package thieves top the list, with car burglaries always close behind. There are also reports of muggings in grocery store parking lots and garages. Fiesta, with the huge homeless encampment across the street, has put up a 6' fence all the way around their lot that can be closed at night. I don't carry a purse anymore, but instead put cash and card on my person. Shop owners in Midtown talk about homeless people "shaking them down" for "protection money" – If the business owners will give them regular pay-offs, the street people will not walk into their establishment and harass their customers. Sheesh – It's like the days of Al Capone!

Lesson: Stay alert, keep your head up and eyes off the phone, and be aware of what's going on around you.

Art and About...

by Penny Cerling

Alice Leora Briggs will have an installation at the Art League, opening March 13.

Her work can be pretty tough - google her - but you can find images of her work that are quite acceptable. Alice stays at our house when she's in Houston and loves our little neighborhood.

www.aliceleorabriggs.com

Piñatasthetic, open through the end of February, at the Art League Houston, is an installation selected by the Art League's Artist Advisory Board during the Open Call process.

Artists Justin Favela, Las Vegas, NV; and Josue Ramirez, Brownsville, TX and Giovanni Valderas, Dallas, TX explore the use of piñata technique and process as a symbol and cultural staple of Latinx identity.

More Holiday Lights in East Montrose!

There was not enough room in the January issue to publish all of the holiday light photos taken by Bill Maxey.

Here are some more to enjoy!

50 Years!

ANDERSON FAIR celebrates a long time love affair with singer songwriters.

You may not recognize the names of the musicians who grace the stage at Anderson Fair, but each one has a unique story and stories to tell in song. Some, like Lyle Lovett, Townes Van Zandt and Guy Clark got their start here. You know how they say that we often discount the treasures in our own neighborhood ... you will be glad you visited this historic venue (now in its 50th year) and experienced the devotion that goes into every detail.

Anderson Fair is located at 2007 Grant Street, just behind Texas Art Supply.

Doors open at 7:30 Music starts around 8:45 on weekends and 8:00 on Thursdays.

EMCA Sponsors and Advertisers

EMCA would like to thank our sponsors and advertisers!
The best way to show appreciation is by supporting their businesses!

The logo for Soren Pedersen features the name "SOREN PEDERSEN" in a white, sans-serif, all-caps font. The letters are arranged in two lines, with "SOREN" on top and "PEDERSEN" on the bottom, separated by a thin horizontal line.
